Dear sirs,

I am a new satellite radio listener, both my wife and myself have satellite radio in our cars and think it is terrific. One of the most appealing features is the 24 hour a day weather and traffic. Both of us work unusual hours and none of the local radio stations offer traffic report at the times that we travel. This will be an invaluable resource never before available.

Please do not let broadcast radio stations bully the government into a ban on these services. It is clearly not cost effective for them to offer these services or they would be doing it already.
